DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims s 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hall et al. in view of Kaehler. Hall et al. teaches an automated payment system for a parking facility comprising a Park Interface viewable on a computer screen and serves as a simulation of the parking facility activities by duplicating the real-time parking occupancies and vacancies occurring within the parking facility. The interface also provides for visual identification of vehicles parked in any space and includes statistics regarding the time and date of vehicle entry into the facility and the parking space. The computer means also provides for the capture, display, storage, organization, retrieval and documentation of all parking activities and vehicle identities of any vehicle that parks in the facility. The computer means of the system further include Internet, fax and e-mail capabilities to support the transmission of parking facility activities and vehicle identities. The availability of parking spaces within the facility is communicated to motorists through variable message displays. As sensors determine the presence or absence of vehicles within parking spaces the displays are continuously updated to reflect actual parking availability. The system further conveniences motorists by providing a vehicle theft deterrent system, which activates alarms and barriers to restrict removal of the vehicle from the facility as well as to automatically, notify police, local security, the vehicle owner and other key persons upon an attempted unauthorized removal of a vehicle. The system provides managers and operators of large parking facilities a comprehensive knowledge of their parking occupancies and vacancies, when they occur and their exact locations.

While it is noted that Hall teaches all the elements of the claimed invention, including two-way audio communication, Hall does not teach using video and audio two-way communication. On the other hand Kaehler teaches the use of two-way audio and video communication with monitoring facility and the payment terminal. Accordingly, to provide video along with the audio two-way communication in the system of Hall, as taught by Kaehler, would have been obvious for one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention. The motivation for the change would have been permitting the customer to initiate and complete an extended transaction from one location, yielding added convenience to the customer. Likewise, the change offers enhanced marketing and sales without hindering traffic flow.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed February 4, 2005, have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

With respect to applicant's argument that Hall does not teach an automated payment system as set forth in the claims, the examiner is of another opinion. Applicant's arbitrary dismissal of the "charge for parking" section fails to adequately address such a teaching in Hall.

With respect to the argument that there is no motivation for the combination, the examiner clearly sets forth in the Office action a reason for the combination.

In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988) and In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992).

In response to applicant's arguments against the references individually, one cannot show nonobviousness by attacking references individually where the rejections are based on combinations of references. See In re Keller, 642 F.2d 413, 208

USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981); In re Merck & Co., 800 F.2d 1091, 231 USPQ 375 (Fed. Cir. 1986).

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

HID Press Releases, March 14, 2004, note the teaching of using RFID tags for parking areas.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
